PORT MARINE SAFETY CODE: DUTY HOLDER

Harbour authorities and owners of marine facilities must have a 'Duty Holder' who is accountable for ensuring safe marine operations and for compliance with the Port Marine Safety Code. For most organisations, the role of Duty Holder is undertaken by a management team or Harbour Board who are collectively and individually accountable.

Course overview

Delivered by members of our experienced Maritime Team and bespoke to your organisation; our PMSC Duty Holder course covers the purpose of the PMSC Code and the role the Duty Holder has in ensuring compliance. We explain the extent of the duties, powers and responsibilities of the Duty Holder, referencing legal obligations.

The programme includes a comprehensive overview of the latest editions of both the PMSC Code and the accompanying Guide to Good Practice on Port Marine Operations. It details the PMSC 'Health Check' compliance audits undertaken by the Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) along with an analysis of the recent adverse trends as published in the PMSC Health Check Trends. The possible consequences of non-compliance with the PMSC are also discussed along with real-world examples of port exposure following marine incidents.

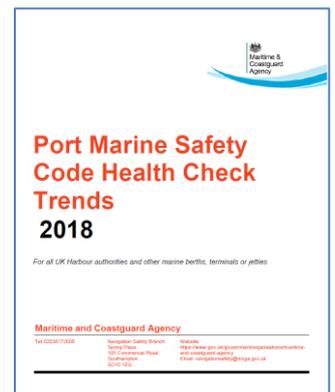

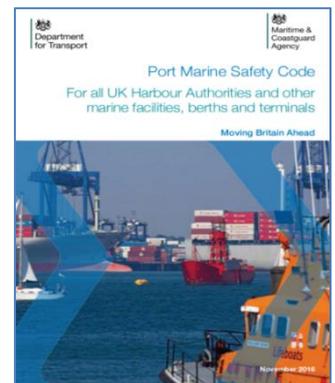

Learning outcomes

By the end of the course, attendees will understand:

- Duties, powers and responsibilities of the Duty Holder
- Requirements to comply with the Port Marine Safety Code
- Information and guidance within the Guide to Good Practice
- Potential exposure from failure to comply with the requirements of the Code

Location

We recommend that this training is carried out on-site where practical. To cover the full breadth of duty holder responsibility, the training is designed as a full-day course, however shorter courses can be arranged (please contact us to discuss this as an option).
